

A free, unique workshop experience on a topic of current interest:

Spirituality in the Face of Economic Uncertainty

Led by Dr. Steven Tomlinson

A practical exploration of faith, spirituality and money.

Date and Time: Sunday, April 26, 2009; 1:30 – 3:30 PM

Location: in the Fellowship Hall of University Christian Church
2007 University Avenue (across from the Littlefield Fountain on UT's South Mall)

What spiritual challenges and opportunities come with this recession?

How does our faith influence how we respond to current economic conditions?

Can faith lead us from anxiety and isolation toward openness to others and God's spirit?

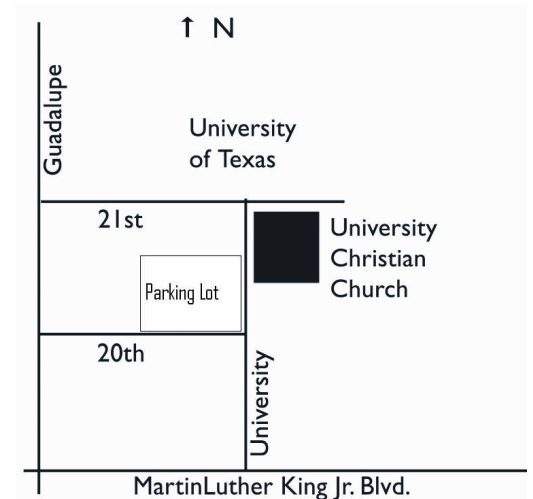

At this workshop you'll have a chance to share your perspective on faith and economic uncertainty, learn from others and hear stories that create a context for thinking spiritually about what's going on in the economy today.

OUR REASONS FOR THIS MINISTRY

University Christian Church (Disciples of Christ) has a history of engaging the University community in explorations of issues of current concern, especially plumbing the religiously-based ethical dimension of these issues. UCC Endowment for Creative Ministry programs provide one current expression of UCC's determination to find in open dialogue a richer understanding of our options.

Our Congregation

University Christian Church is an active member congregation of the Christian Church (Disciples of Christ). UCC:

- Is open and friendly, organized and committed to facilitating and nurturing personal spiritual growth.
- Promotes freedom of belief, respect for each person's views, and is consistently understanding and tolerant of others.
- Encourages healthy moral, ethical, and spiritual attitudes to benefit both the individual and the greater community.
- Is an inclusive congregation that welcomes all.
- Is an especially good match for independent thinkers who want to build their own theology.
